INTRODUCTION

Tripura-An Overview :

Tripura is a small but picturesque state in the North East India. To its north, south and South-east, Tripura has an international boundary with Bangladesh while to its east it shares a common boundary with two Indian states of Assam and Mizoram. The beauty of the erstwhile princely state of Tripura stands from the splendor of its natural setting and its dazzling heritage. This panoramic tiny state is inhabited by 19 ethnic tribes, Bengali and Manipuri etc. communities. Tripura is blessed with its scenic beauties, historic palaces, rock-cut carvings, stone sculptures, museums, breath-taking verdant hills, Buddhist and Hindu holy places, and bio-diversity treasure troves of wildlife sanctuaries. The pollution free, eco friendly environment, pleasant climate, and its cross-cultural ethnic diversity, its rich tradition of handicrafts and handloom are tempting enough to draw the attention of the tourist to visit the destination again and again.

30. Akhaura Integrated Check Post (ICP), Agartala

The first Integrated Checkpost along Agartala-Akhaura, India-Bangladesh border was jointly inaugurated on 17 November 2013 by Union Home Minister Sushilkumar Shinde and his Bangladeshi counterpart Mohiuddin Khan Alamgir. This integrated checkpost has been created to facilitate easier movement for the goods and passengers across the border and this will help in promoting the relations between India and Bangladesh. People travel especially to the border to witness the ceremony in which the flags of the two countries are lowered by security personnel with a mutually coordinated performance.

CULTURAL TOURISM OF TRIPURA

A happy feature of the people of Tripura is their love for music and dance. For instance, the Garia is a dance for the prosperity of the people while the Cheraw relates to the confinement of the Iusai women. The Garia and Cheraw dances are not the only ones that the people of Tripura have part of their culture. Some of the others include: Hai-Hak: Dance of the Malsom community, Wangle: dance of the Garo community, Sangraika, Chimithang, Padisha and Abhangma: dances of the Mog community, Garia: dances of Koloï, Jamatia and Tripuri communities. Gajan, Dhamail, Sari and Rabindra : dances of benbali community, Basanta Rash and Pung Cholom : dances of the Manipuri community, Garia, Jhum, Maimita, Masak Sumani and Lebang Boomani : dances of the Tripuri community, Hozagiri: dance of the Reang community, Biju : dance of the Chakma community.

Each community has devised its own musical instruments. Some of the important musical instruments are the Kham (Drum), the bamboo Flute, Saringa, Do-tara and the Sarinda. Tripura has had a long and wonderful friendship with the Nobel laureate Rabindranath Tagore and this had added to the richness and quality of Tripura's culture. The state of Tripura is also very proud of two other musicians – Sachin Dev Barman and Rahul Dev Burman, both very influential figures in Indian popular culture.
